Thickening Our Receipts

Much of February's Town Council meeting focused on our budget. Indeed, at times the proceedings felt more like a work session than a council meeting. There was much fiddling with long sheets of paper and chatting about projections. One question throughout was how to "thicken our receipts" (as Ted Pratt put it), so as to lessen the effects on Garrett Park of the bad economy.

Before the Council got to money matters, however, Caroline Turner made a presentation about an upcoming town-wide yard sale, sponsored by the Women's Club and tentatively scheduled for Saturday, April 28. Unlike earlier yard sales, this one would have people in town who want to participate using their own driveways, rather than gathering at some central location. There would be no street closings.

In his remarks, the Mayor noted that a letter protesting the proposed MARC changes has gone to the Secretary of Transportation and to the head of the MTA. Chris also noted that he and Beth Irons attended the Garrett Park Nursery School opening. And the Council will have a work session on the 2013 budget on Saturday, March 3, at the Town Hall.

The Mayor also announced that he won't run for re-election (town elections are scheduled for Monday, May 7), noting that town tradition is for two-term mayors. It sounds as though there will also be openings on the Council, so get going on your platform speeches.

The Archives Committee has now hired a part-time archivist to help turn our boxes full of material into a rational system.

The POSCO charette was a runaway success, with lots of people there to share ideas for renovating the park adjacent to the swimming pool. Chris Petito thanked Ida Sullivan for pulling everything together beautifully.

Those of us who, like your reporter, live on Rokeby Avenue and have been panting with anticipation of our new speed bump need pant no more. In answer to a question from Jack Mandel, Ted said that other roadwork will be happening soon on Rokeby, and the town intends to put the hump in at that time. (continued next page)

Ted updated us on capital projects: As everyone who drives through town knows, lots of work has been taking place along both sides of Kenilworth just off Strathmore. Work was finished on the Town Hall side of the avenue in time for the opening of school. There will be some replanting of trees in this location. As I write, work continues on the other side of Kenilworth.

All of this road and sidewalk work should be finished by the end of March. In late March, the town will turn to fixing the Shelley Court drain.

After some unresolved discussion of how the town wants to proceed as we continue to consider changes to our building code—the procedure under discussion here mainly related to how we inform and get input from the county—the Council turned to the budget.

The Council passed an amended budget that reflects our anticipation of lower property taxes and thus lower revenue. (“The history of our income taxes,” Jack Mandel marveled, “is really screwy.” Because of our small population, if one family happens to get lucky, financially speaking, our revenue can shoot up. Perhaps the Council should make buying lottery tickets mandatory.)

The meeting concluded with Ted’s reflections on the town’s financial health in these perilous times. “The budget’s pretty much on track, and we’re in more or less better shape than I thought we’d be. But next year’s budget will be much lower than this year’s. We project a 30 percent reduction in receipts.”

Margaret Soltan

Art at Penn Place

The work of painter Rebecca Hirsch will be shown at Penn Place beginning March 4. According to Rebecca, color, shapes, lines, and how they occupy space are her main concerns, whether she is working figuratively or abstractly. Her work in oils tends to be more figurative; her abstractions use additional media including charcoal, ink, gouache, and collage materials. Her ideas come from drawings from life around her as well as from compositions in many sketchbooks. She works on several pieces at a time, feeling that it aids a kind of helpful cross-fertilization.

Rebecca’s work has been shown in the Washington, DC, area at several local galleries and business settings. She has also illustrated books, among them The Mother’s Almanac, by local journalist Marguerite Kelly. She studied painting and design at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh and received a Bachelor of Fine Arts in painting from American University. She currently lives in Silver Spring with her husband, a woodworker and sculptor.

Oral History Volunteers Needed

Would you like to know more about our town as seen through the eyes of some of those who made Garrett Park the special place it is? To hear first-hand what it was like to live here in earlier times? If so, come join in interviewing some of our long-time residents as part of the Garrett Park Oral History Project. Begun in the 1990s as part of the town’s Centennial celebrations, the project is an effort to preserve the memories of Garrett Park that are held by its present and former residents. After a lengthy hiatus, the project is beginning again under the auspices of the Garrett Park Archives Advisory Committee. We hope to capture a sense of what it was like to live in Garrett Park during various times in its history—to enliven the facts and figures found in deed books and census records with anecdotes about people and events in the life of the town.

We are looking for volunteers to conduct interviews and others to transcribe them. We have “how to” information and sample questions to guide the novice interviewer. Interviewing and transcribing are both great ways to get to know some of the town’s long-time residents and learn more about the historic town you call home.

If you are interested, please contact the Archives Advisory Committee Chairman, Charlie Snyder, or the Oral History Coordinator, Nancy Schwartz. Also, don’t hesitate to contact us with suggestions of persons to interview.

This revenue supports many of the services the town provides to residents. Also, the Town Office can provide copies of most IRS forms, so stop by if you need any.

The Garrett Park Conservation Trust has an opening on its Board of Directors for a conservation-minded individual with a strong interest in preserving open space. GPCTrust is a nonprofit 501C3 organization that strives to preserve open space primarily through the acquisition of conservation easements in town. It also works closely with its sister organization GPCAN (Garrett Park Conservation Action Network) to promote a broader range of conservation values, including energy efficiency, storm water management, and other sustainable ways of living. The Board meets several times each year, usually at the Ingham house, with refreshments, for a fun evening of generating new ideas, setting priorities, and making decisions regarding the future of the organization. An Original Town Musical

In 1955, an energetic group of Garrett Park townspeople wrote and produced a musical comedy called The Gypsy in Me. The complete work (music and script) has come to light. What can we do with this treasure?

A planning session is scheduled for Wednesday, February 29, at 7 pm in the Town Office. Please let Marian Green know if you can attend. This could be an exciting project that enhances our understanding of the culture of the past—or not! Give your "gypsy" a chance.

Help Direct the Green Team

What is sustainability? The United Nations Brundtland Commission in 1987 defined it as "Meeting the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs."

The Garrett Park Green Team has put up a very short survey for all townspeople to let us know what sustainable initiatives they are most interested in seeing in Garrett Park. Please fill out the survey yourself, and encourage town friends and neighbors to do it as well. Other members of your own household should fill it out separately, since each person may have different interests.

Go to this link to fill it out: www.surveymonkey.com/s/83NNJ5P. Thank you for filling it out and passing it along!

Letter from the Mayor

The mild winter this year will have several effects in Garrett Park (in addition to the early appearance of daffodils). Temperate weather has permitted the town to go forward with capital improvements that might otherwise have awaited warmer spring days: installation of sidewalks, curbs/gutters, and driveway aprons is nearly complete. Storm drain work will start soon and should be finished before heavier seasonal rains. The town will also begin replacement tree planting earlier than usual. In particular, we look forward to planting an attractive row of trees on the west side of the 10800 block of Kenilworth, where last year a number of aging, brittle Siberian elms were removed, with Pepco's assistance. The town's consulting arborist has located especially attractive tree lilacs that have multiseason interest (spring bloom, fall color, and attractive bark) and will not grow into the power lines as they mature. The town will also replace sugar maples, restoring the allée of fall color in the block of Kenilworth north of Strathmore. Elsewhere in town we will focus on replacement planting opportunities. The lack of severe weather has also had a beneficent impact on the town's snow removal and storm budget.

Speaking of the budget ... the Town Council will have its annual budget-planning work session on Saturday, March 3, at 9 am at the Town Hall. The FY2013 budget will be introduced at the March 12 Council meeting and will be voted at the April 9 Council meeting. Resident views are always welcome, although the work session is primarily for Council participation. If you cannot attend one of these meetings in person, please let us know your thoughts about town financial issues and appropriate town expenditures by e-mail to garrett-park@comcast.net or by chatting with me and Councilmembers. The town's finances are in good shape, especially relative to many jurisdictions that are coping with more severe fiscal challenges. This results from many factors, not the least of which is living in an area that has been insulated from the worst of the broader economic pains affecting so much of our nation. The town administrator and the Town Council are fiscally responsible and prudent. As a result, we have been able to embark on substantial infrastructure improvements while maintaining the high level of services that town residents expect. We have also added a significant asset to the town: the town's insurer recently put the value of the Community Center building at $645,000, after the Nursery School's sizable investment in renovation and upgrades to the building.

None of this is to say that the town should not remain prudent in its financial planning, or that we do not face fiscal challenges. Chief among the latter are continuing cutbacks in state and county revenue sharing: the town's payment from state highway user revenue has been cut 90 percent in each of the last three years, and revenue sharing from Montgomery County has been reduced about 60 percent. The town has no choice but to absorb these cutbacks, which we were initially able to do precisely because the town's finances are solid. The cumulative effect of these reductions, however, is significant. For highway user revenue, for example, the cumulative shortfall is about $150,000. That would cover a significant portion of the current curb, gutter, and drainage work, which is instead being paid out of the town's general revenues.

As the town's property tax is the only revenue source over which the town has control, we will face some hard choices in assembling the FY13 budget. For fiscal 2013, the town's assessable tax base will shrink about 15 percent. Property assessments are undertaken by the state on a three-year cycle, so the tax base figures lag trends in real estate transactions; this will be the first year in which the full effect of the 2008–2010 downturn in residential sales figures is reflected.

On a bright note, the January 28 meeting to consider possible changes to "Cambria Courts" was a resounding success, with a particularly gratifying turnout of younger residents. A big "thank you" to Ida Sullivan, chair, and the Parks and Open Spaces Committee, as well as Gene Brantly, facilitator of the meeting. We look forward to further ideas from the Committee and residents.

Finally, I want to urge all town residents to consider ways that you can volunteer your expertise and enthusiasm for the benefit of your neighbors. There are several vacancies on town advisory committees (see www.garrettpark-md.gov for more information), and the town election in May presents another opportunity for your participation through elective office. Nominations for mayor and two Council positions will be taken at the March 28 Citizens Association meeting and by petition until April 16. The satisfactions of service to the town and your fellow residents are substantial.
